

Our story begins with a young forgetful student of magic named Abigail Teachfoot. It seems Abigail, known as "Abby" to her friends, has once again forgotten her homework, her books, and even her magic wand. It seems "Abby" in her haste to get back to school after a weeks holiday home has once again shown her talent for forgetting things. Being that this is not the first time Ms. Teachfoot has forgotten such items, if by morning she has not recovered the forgotten items, Abby looks to be in line for a weeks detention. However, it has come to our attention that she has sent her faithful, if not somewhat curious owl to retrieve her items. To be sure it is a long, improbable and even dangerous journey, and with the dark of night now upon us, the owl's task seems even more daunting. To make matters worse still, is the rumor that this "steadfast" creature is not fond of the dark. It has even been said, he is "Afraid of the Dark!"

Poor Ms. Abigail, it seems as if her luck has run out.... or has it?

